IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT FILING CLAIMS

ELIGIBLE MEDICAL EXPENSES

Many, but not all, expenses that are eligible for reimbursement from a Medical Care FSA meet the deductibility rules under Internal Revenue Code Section 213. A good way to help you determine if an expense may be eligible for reimbursement is to consider three general tests described below. Even though you determine that an expense qualifies under IRC Section 213 and satisfies the general tests below, your plan can be written to exclude it. Please refer to your plan's Summary Plan Description for specific rules regarding eligible and ineligible expenses.

1. PRIMARY PURPOSE TEST

Was the primary purpose for incurring the medical expense for the prevention or alleviation of a health or body condition? Was the treatment specific to the medical condition rather than for general physical improvement or general well being? A response of "no" to any one question would render the expense ineligible.

2. "BUT FOR" TEST

Would the medical expense have been incurred "but for" the disease or illness? Would you have done it (incurred the expense) anyway? In other words, would you have been treated even if you did not have the specific medical condition, disease or illness? A response of "yes" to any one of these questions would render the expense ineligible.

3. REASONABLENESS TEST

Is the medical expense reasonable? Is the entire expenditure for the treatment of a medical condition and not partially or totally for personal, living, or family expenses? A response of "no" to either of these questions would render the expense ineligible.

Whether or not an expense is eligible will not always be clearly defined in the regulations. That determination will occasionally be very complex. You are always welcome to call Admin America to get a specific determination over the telephone before you submit your claim.

CLAIM DOCUMENTATION

The IRS requires that all expenses be substantiated. That is, you must provide documentation that proves you or one of your dependents incurred the expense during the respective plan year. If you do not attach acceptable documentation, your claim will be returned to you. Below are some of the ways to document your expenses according to IRS rules.

- In general, for documentation of medical expenses to be acceptable, medical services or drugs and medications must be described or identified, the date the expense was incurred (i.e., goods or services were received) must be evident and the out-of-pocket expense you are responsible for must be stated clearly.
- Good documentation for most expenses is an Explanation of Benefits (EOB) from your insurance company.
- Office receipts for office visit co-pays from your doctor are acceptable.
- For prescription drugs, acceptable documentation is the informational receipt that is typically attached to the pharmacy bag or a computer printout from the pharmacy. For over the counter medications (OTC), receipts must include the name of the medication and be accompanied by a doctor's prescription for the specific medication purchased. If the receipt does not have the name of the item purchased, attach part of the packaging that identifies the item to the receipt.
- Unacceptable forms of documentation for medical expenses include copies of checks, credit card receipts (unless also accompanied by additional documentation) and billing statements showing only a prior balance.

CLAIM RETURN POLICY

If you submit a claim for an ineligible expense, for a time when you were not enrolled in the plan, with insufficient documentation, etc., Admin America will return the claim to you by mail or email. We will include an explanation of what modifications (if any) you must make before your claim can be accepted. If we indicate that an adjustment is necessary to make the claim acceptable then make the modification and mail or fax the claim back to Admin America. When we receive your corrected claim, we will include it with the next scheduled processing (if applicable). Reimbursements (if applicable) for corrected claims cannot be processed separately from the regular processing date for your company.

END OF THE YEAR REIMBURSEMENT AND GRACE PERIOD

The timing of your expenses is very important and determines the plan year period from which your expense is reimbursable. For medical care expenses to be reimbursable from a specific Plan Year's account, you must incur the expense within the defined Plan Year period or during the Grace Extension (if any) established by your Plan. An expense is considered "incurred" when goods and/or services are received, not when you pay for the expense.

Most, but not all, flexible benefit plans allow you up to 90 days after the end of the plan year to submit claim paper work for the prior year. Remember that your expense must have been incurred (i.e., services received) during the prior plan year or grace extension, if any, in order to be eligible for reimbursement from the prior year's account.

Be sure to consult your summary of the plan to clarify the grace extension (if any), the period of time you have to file claims and to determine the beginning and ending dates for your plan year.

Please feel free to contact Admin America with any questions you may have regarding IRS regulations or how your plan operates.
